

Omega is currently the largest mixed-use development site in the North West. With immediate access to the region's motorway network from Junction 8 of the M62, its unrivalled location has proved attractive to the Travis Perkins Group.

Travis Perkins is the UK's largest supplier to the building and construction sector and has recently opened its brand new 700,000 ft² distribution centre costing £35M.

As TP's preferred supplier of public address systems to its sites throughout the UK, PAS Sound were engaged on the supply, installation and commissioning of a distributed public address and background music system to this enormous building.

PAS Installation Manager Bernie Boardman oversaw the project which utilised in excess of 130 loudspeakers and almost 4km of cable. "We have worked with Travis Perkins for several years now and have successfully delivered similar systems to other distribution sites around the UK, but this building has to be the largest!"
